SUMMARY

I was announced as a published author in the Spring semester of 2019 at my previous institution, St. Philip's College. My acquaintance was unexplainable, due to the fact that it was a very elating moment for me but also, I never expected to become an author because "writing" was not my major. On my first writing titled, "My favorite guidance", encapsulates that nothing is impossible; persistence is the key. The Second writing titled, "The Words of Wisdom" talks about a mother teacher her young son how to be successful and how life itself can be deceiving. My goal for this second publication was to encourage young adults to pay attention into the deep meaning of the text and to how to be successful in life by following the advices that the mother is revealing to her son.

SPICES

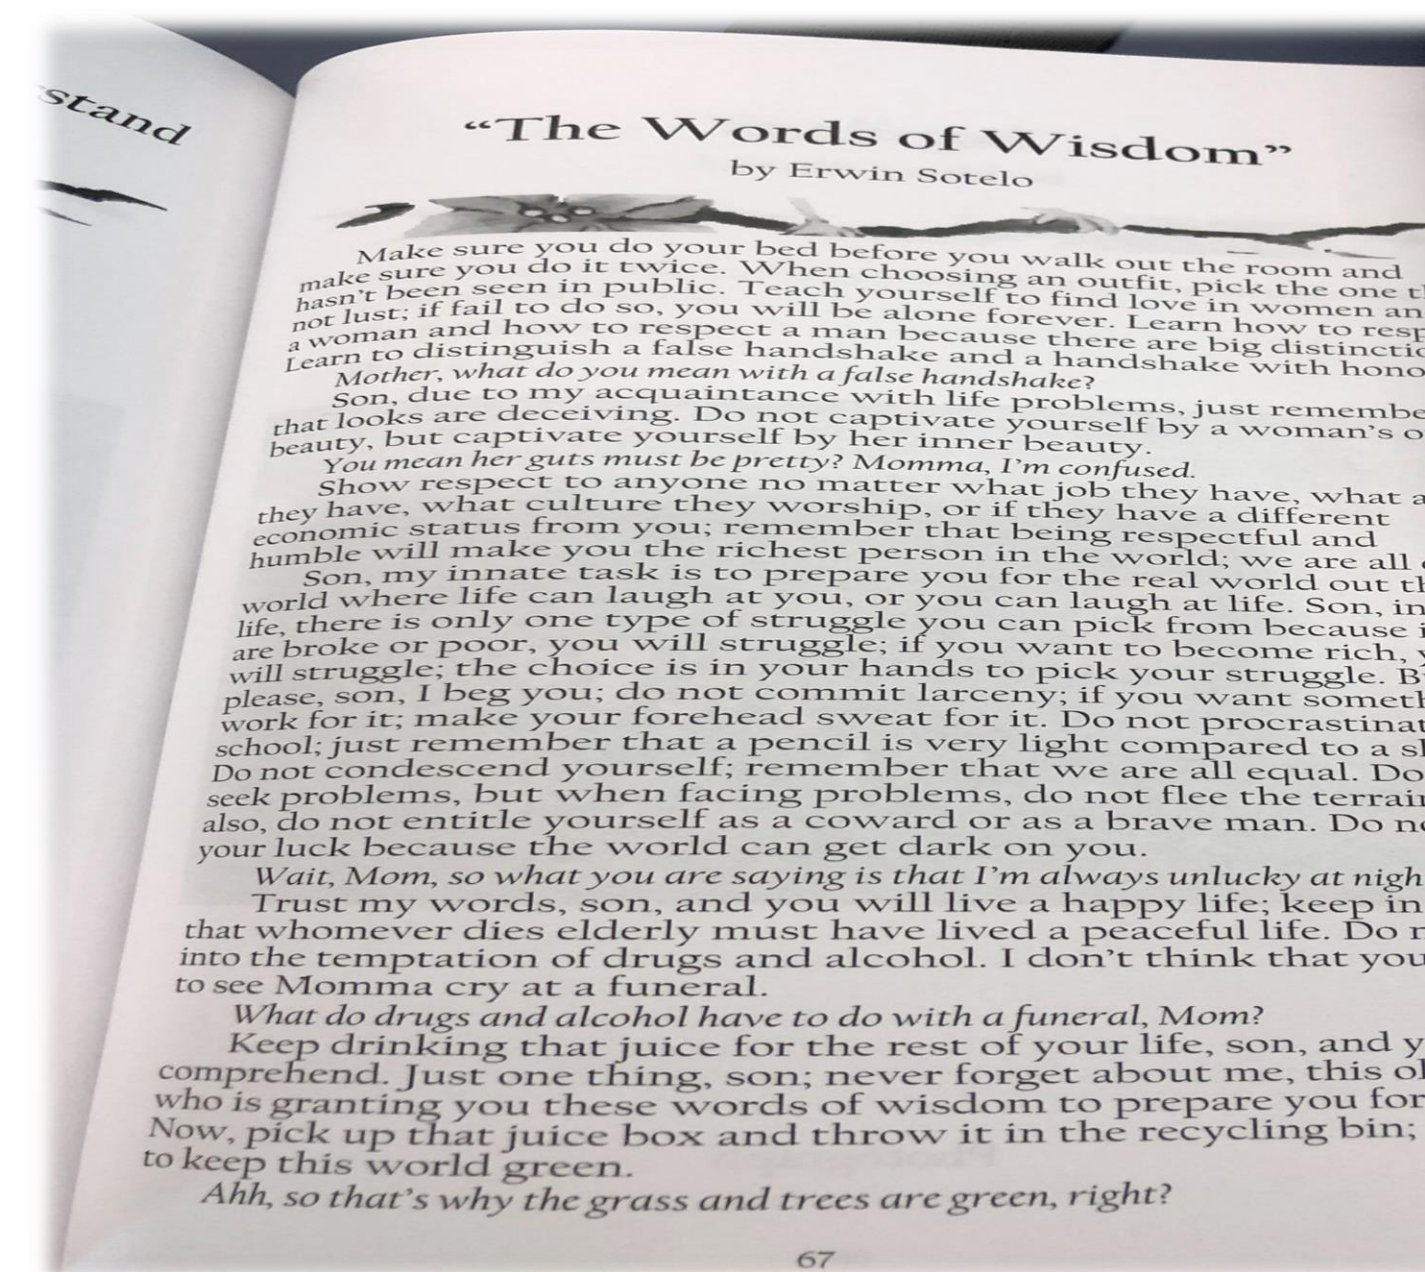

This experience falls under Intellectual Achievement because it is a publication that has been achieved through hard work. It is considered as creative work that is not related to my major.

HERBS

I consider Publication 1 as 'Honorable' as it talks about my achievements. Publication 2 falls under 'Benevolence' because it's the predominant 'personal' ethical categorization in caring about others.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Depending on which writing we scrutinize, this activity/experience was intended to evoke others to not give up when someone possesses a dream, even if it's a short- or long-term goal. On the other hand, on the second writing implements a deep meaning to every word that it is said to the child. This makes the reader to device a new philosophy of how to approach certain unexpected situations in life.

IMPACT

Being pronounced as a published author impacted my life in a very good way, but also to other people who had read my publications. Depending on which writings the other person decides to read, for example, a person can be impacting by having more self confidence in accomplishing his/her educational studies. He or she can be encouraged to accomplish any dream and defeat any obstacle that hampers them from achieving that dream.

ADVICE

Persistence is the key to success. Always be slow and accurate, rather than responsive and inaccurate.
